

Personal Independence Payment rates 2024/25

Enhanced daily living component	£108.55
Standard daily living component	£72.65
Enhanced mobility component	£75.75
Standard mobility component	£28.70

People will get:

- the standard rate of daily living component if their assessment gives them 8 - 11 points for daily living activities,
- the enhanced rate of daily living component if their assessment gives them 12 points or more for daily living activities,
- the standard rate of mobility component if their assessment gives them 8 - 11 points for mobility activities,
- the enhanced rate of mobility component if their assessment gives them 12 points or more for mobility activities.

- People assessed at fewer than 8 points for either component will not be awarded that component.

The daily living activities are:

- Preparing and cooking food,
- Taking nutrition (ie eating and drinking, being tube fed)
- Managing therapy or monitoring a health condition (ie. taking prescribed medication, managing therapy which has been recommended by a medical professional and is undertaken in the home environment and watching out for a deterioration in health),
- Washing and bathing,
- Managing toilet needs or incontinence
- Dressing and undressing,
- Communicating verbally (talking and listening to others),
- Reading and understanding signs, symbols and words,
- Engaging with other people face to face,
- Making budgeting decisions.

The mobility activities are:

- Planning and following journeys,
- Moving around.

Each activity has a list of descriptors with point scores. One descriptor is selected for each activity and the corresponding points are awarded for each activity depending on the claimant's inability to complete the activities reliably – ie:

- Safely - unlikely to cause harm to the claimant or anyone else, either during or after the activity
- To an acceptable standard.
- Repeatedly - as many times would be reasonably required during the day.
- In a reasonable time period - not more than twice the length of time it would take a person without a health condition or disability to complete the activity.